

TELL US Awards for the best learning technologies

The first TELL US Awards seeks technologies that will improve learning in classrooms.

Companies and entrepreneurs from across Europe who wish to participate have until December 20 to submit their projects via the web:

TELL US Awards will give prizes to the best learning technologies that have achieved proven results in classrooms (primary and secondary education, university or vocational training).

This competition gives companies and entrepreneurs a chance to make their products and services grow and become more visible. It will help them promote their innovative solutions in classrooms across Europe.

The competition was organized in two phases: a regional stage (in 4 geographical areas: Mediterranean, Northern Europe, Scandinavia and Eastern Europe) and a grand finale to be held in Paris in June 2015. In the first phase an international jury of independent experts will select 16 finalists, who will then be invited to the Grand European Finale.

What are the prizes?

The awards include a combination of cash prizes, support services, business development, internationalization support, networking, the opportunity to participate in major conferences and events on learning technologies and the chance to present the winning technologies at the Futur festival en Seine to be held in June 2015 in Paris, which draws over 70,000 visitors.

Who can join in?

This EC-sponsored contest is open to companies, entrepreneurs, teachers and students from the 28 EU Member States whose technology or application has achieved proven results in the context of formal education (primary, secondary, university or professional training).
